Fellows

CLASS OF 2024

Shradha Gupta, MD

Residency: St. Vincent Hospital Program
Medical School: Seth G.S. Medical College

Hello everyone, my name is Shradha(sh-r-uh-dh-aa) which means faith in English. I was born and raised in India and completed my medical school from one of the most prestigious medical schools in India, Seth G.S, medical college and K.E.M hospital. I moved to Worcester Massachusetts, and completed my Internal medicine residency training at St. Vincent Hospital and then became a fourth year chief medical resident at the same hospital.

The acuity of the inpatient medicine and being there for my patients during their worst time of health, and supporting them, is what attracts me to working in this setting.

I enjoy outdoor activities, including hiking, biking and swimming(still mastering my skills). I have tried adventure sports, including bungee jumping, sky diving and snorkeling. I love to read, and the genre that I prefer is non-fiction, autobiographies, and self-improvement. I am a certified coach and mindfulness teacher. I spend a lot of time in enjoying these activities and practicing on my cushion. The most favorite of all is spending quality time with my family somewhere in nature.

It is my passion to serve my patients to the best of my abilities, and to pass on some skill sets to the next generation of physicians to have a longer, productive and fulfilling career. The vision, mission and values of HonorHealth echoes with my personal virtues and I'm happy to be a part of this amazing organization and be training under the guidance of my mentors. Looking forward to serving and learning together.

Beatrice Felicia Wood, DO

Residency: University of South Florida Morsani
Medical School: Marian University College of Osteopathic Medicine

I was born in the Republic of Moldova, a country in eastern Europe bordered by Romania and Ukraine. When I was five years old, my parents and I immigrated to Queens, New York. I spent the remainder of my childhood there until my family relocated to Arizona after I completed high school. I graduated from Arizona State University with a degree in biology, where I ended up meeting my future husband, Tony, in a ballroom dance class. Upon completion of my pre-medical studies at Arizona State University, I moved to Houston to be with my husband while he finished his medical school degree. Thereafter, we moved to Indianapolis, Indiana, and I enrolled in Marian University School of Osteopathic Medicine. After graduating medical school, we relocated once again to Tampa, Florida, to complete my Internal Medicine Residency at the University of South Florida.

While training at a level one trauma hospital and comprehensive cancer center, I had the privilege to care for very ill patients and witness their bravery and resiliency in challenging and vulnerable situations. The sense of purpose I felt being present during these moments as I helped to guide patients through difficult circumstances led me to pursue a career in hospice and palliative medicine. I take pride in the quality of care I provide patients, aiming to be a reliable, thorough, and communicative physician. My interests within hospice and palliative medicine include pain and symptom management for cancer patients and those with terminal illnesses. HonorHealth stood out to me given the broad educational opportunities, the diverse population they serve, and their collegial environment.

Outside of work, I enjoy having barbecues with my family, napping on the couch with my cat Charley, and painting/arts and crafts. I am also a big foodie and love eating at restaurants as well as trying new recipes at home. On the weekends I like going outdoors and spotting wildlife. I am very excited to be coming back to Arizona to serve the community in the place I consider home.
