Offsite Rotations

Family Medicine Residents will undergo training and provide patient care in both broad hospital training and continuity of care for patients of all age groups, and residents are expected to adapt their skills to fit the community's needs. Training is provided for common procedures in the outpatient setting, including joint injections, vaginal deliveries, cryotherapy, osteopathic manipulation, biopsies, IUD insertion and removal, suturing, and toenail removal. Residents will learn to interpret EKGs, spirometry, and laboratory studies. Additionally, they will train to provide acute, chronic, and preventative medical care encompassing the broad scope of Family Medicine.

Our Residents will undergo training and provide patient care in broad hospital training and continuity of care for patients of all age groups. Residents are expected to adapt their skills to fit the community's needs. Residents are guided by the ACGME's Competencies: Patient Care, Medical Knowledge, Systems-Based Practice, Practice-Based Learning and Improvement, Professionalism, and Interpersonal and Communication Skills.
